Important notes

Membership categories that cannot be consolidated

The following membership categories cannot generally be consolidated into other categories:

- any account where a maritime employer is contributing for you
- a Contributory Accumulation account - unless you left the employ of a maritime employer on or after 1 December 2011 or you have retired from the maritime industry
- any pension account (although you can consolidate the account after commuting your benefits back to your Maritime Super accumulation account, if any)
- a Permanent (Defined Benefit) membership in the Stevedores division (although you can consolidate the membership after first electing to transfer to Accumulation Plus); or
- any other membership with a Reliance Super membership.

Please call Member Services on 1800 757 607 before making a request to consolidate these accounts.

Consolidating in Contributory Accumulation

If you transfer your benefit to Contributory Accumulation, any unrestricted non-preserved benefits will become restricted non-preserved benefits and you cannot access this benefit until you have stopped working for your Contributory Accumulation employer. In other membership categories, unrestricted non-preserved benefits can be accessed at any time.

Insurance

When you consolidate your accounts there may be implications in relation to your insurance cover, particularly where you hold Default or Basic cover specific to a membership category. Generally, any voluntary insurance cover that you hold will be automatically transferred across to the membership category you are transferring to (subject to the Policy rules). Refer to the PDS and Insurance Supplement of the relevant categories, particularly the continuation option section in the Insurance Supplement.
